There is no objection to anonymity; a book may be published under a pseudonym if the author so desires.

A manuscript written by two or more authors in collaboration will be eligible; if such a manuscript wins the award, the prize-money and royalties will be divided between the collaborators.

A book which has been published in serial or condensed form in a magazine or which has been developed from a short story in a magazine will be eligible, provided it has never been published in book form.

If, in the opinion of the judges, no manuscript submitted is of sufficient distinction to merit the prize award, the judges will have the authority to withhold it.

On the manuscript itself this statement should appear: Submitted for The Dutton Animal Book Award.

THE 1965 DUTTON ANIMAL BOOK AWARD

$7500.00

The Dutton Animal Book Award was first announced in 1962. Since that time there have been two distinguished winners: RASCAL by Sterling North, published in 1963, and THE POND by Robert Murphy, to be published in 1964. This international literary prize, the largest in this field given by any publisher, is presented annually by E. P. Dutton & Co. for a full-length work of adult fiction or nonfiction relating to animals.

E. P. Dutton & Co. will guarantee a minimum of $7500.00 to the author of the prize-winning manuscript.

The 1965 contest opens on January 1, 1964 and closes December 31, 1964. The winner will be announced as soon as possible after the closing of the contest, and the award-winning book will be published in the fall of 1965. The closing date must be considered applicable to all contestants, and in fairness to everyone cannot be extended for any individual no matter what the circumstances.

The contest is open to new authors and to authors whose works have already been published, to authors in the United States and to foreign authors.

Manuscripts must be typewritten, in English, double-spaced, on one side of a page only. In both the fiction and non-fiction categories no manuscripts containing less than 35,000 words will be eligible. Illustrations, whether photographs or drawings, may be included with the manuscripts, but are not required as part of a submission unless they are basic to the story. Manuscripts must be complete.

The word "animal" is used in the broadest possible sense. Among living creatures only Man and Plants are excluded.

Authors are not limited to one entry.

Books written for children will not be eligible for this adult award. They should be submitted for the Dutton Junior Animal Book Award.

In addition to the prize-winning manuscript, all manuscripts submitted are to be considered available for possible publication by E. P. Dutton & Co., subject to contractual terms to be agreed upon.

The Editors of E. P. Dutton & Co. will be the judges and will have sole authority to select the prize-winning manuscript.

Address manuscripts: The Dutton Animal Book Award, E. P. Dutton & Co., 201 Park Avenue South, New York, N. Y.

A duplicate copy of the manuscript should be retained by the author.

Every manuscript submitted will be carefully considered, and those found unsuitable for publication will be returned within a reasonable time after their submission. E. P. Dutton & Co. cannot be responsible for manuscripts lost or damaged.

Manuscripts from any part of the United States may be mailed prepaid subject to "Educational Material" rates. Enclose stamps for return postage. Manuscripts from outside the United States should be accompanied by an international money order to cover return.
